CONFERRING OF DEGREES.

Thirty-fourth Annual Commencement Celebrated.

The thirty-fourth annual commencement of Cornell University was held Thursday, June 19, in the Armory hall on the Campus.

Governor Odell, in his official capacity as ex-officio member of the board of trustees, was present as a guest of the University. His presence added interest to the occasion and attracted multitudes to the Campus green who formed a lane from the Library to the Armory. The exercises lasted from 10 o'clock to 12:30.

The weather was magnificent for the closing hours for the class of 1902. The morning was dark and lowering and at 6 o'clock a steady drizzle of rain set in. At 9 o'clock, however, the heavy clouds broke away and thousands hastened to view the procession.

The trustees of the University met at 10 o'clock in the president's rooms. At 10:15 the members of the faculty and the candidates for degrees began to form in front of Morrill. The procession was formed in two divisions, the first being made up of the candidates for degrees in the different colleges, and the second consisting of the professors and the other officers of the University.

Promptly at 10:30 the line took up its march for the armory. The women students were in the van being followed by the men. Almost without exception the graduating class was in caps and gowns.

The marshals, Brinkerhoff and Young, headed the column. They were followed by the women students. Next in order came the candidates for advanced degrees who were followed by the men of the senior class.

The accession of Governor Odell and President Schurman to the head of the line of the second division was a signal for a storm of cheers. About forty members of the Faculty wore their academic gowns.

As the long black line of students drew down the Campus it was a mark for a hundred cameras. When the head of the procession reached the north door of the Armory, the first division halted and opened to allow the second division made up of the Governor, President, and trustees and the Faculty to pass through into the Armory.

The great hall was packed to the doors with people. As the Governor appeared at the head of the column he was warmly applauded by the thousands in the hall. The Faculty, the Governor and President Schurman took their places on the platform erected at the eastern part of the Armory. The members of the senior class then entered the building and took their allotted seats before the platform. The music was furnished by the Ithaca band.

The exercises were formally opened by a prayer by the Rev. Professor Charles Mellen Tyler.

The degrees were then conferred on the members of the class of 1902 by President Schurman. The degrees in arts were first granted. Dean Crane recommended the 188 arts students for their degrees. Each member of the class then filed across the platform in front of the president and received the reward for his four year's work. As prominent seniors received the sheepskin they were applauded by the spectators.

The whole number of degrees granted in all departments were 368. They were distributed through the different colleges as follows:

Arts, 188; Law, 32; Agriculture, 8; Veterinary Medicine, 10; Forestry, 2; Architecture, 8; Civil Engineering, 31; Mechanical Engineering, 74; Electrical Engineering, 36. Nineteen took degrees as masters of arts; seven as masters of agriculture; four as masters of mechanical engineering and twenty-three as doctors of philosophy.

The prizes won by the students during the past year were then presented.

The address by President Schurman followed. He appeared in the gown of the holders of the degree of Doctor of Laws from the University of Edinburg. He spoke for thirty minutes.

In opening his address President Schurman stated that the time of scholastic preparation for the members of the class of 1902 was now ended. Though the time of academic leisure is past, the habits of past student days should be continued in the reading of useful books and in the grasping of new ideas. But the time for these intellectual pursuits must be found in the leisure following toilsome days.

"Life is upon you," he said, "I want you all to succeed. But the condition of everything else is that you shall first make a living for yourself."

"The world is full of opportunities; never before were they so plentiful and the rewards so rich. I speak unto you, young men, because you are strong. The world is yours; enter in and possess it. As Dr. Jowett used to say to the men of Balliol college, Don't make a mess of life."

He then went on to say that the degree was not a title of emancipation for the rough usages of life. For the achievement of success you must get rid of academic conceit.

"Bury deep in your own heart," said he, "the thought that you are a graduate."

The educated man has a real advantage over his uneducated brother. But a little knowledge is a dangerous thing, and it should be the aim of all to make their culture full.

President Schurman then stated that the peculiar function of the educated man is to be an exponent of ideas and principles. He may conceive some great thought that shall revolutionize the beliefs of mankind or he may invent a machine.

The college man should enter politics. In our republic, which is based on public opinion, it is the duty of every educated man to contribute to the best of his ability to the education of public opinion.

After referring in a graceful way to Governor Odell's capacity as chief executive, President Schurman closed his address with the following charge to the graduating class.

"Men and women of the graduating classes. You go out to make a living and to make life worth living, take on behalf of Alma Mater our best wishes and our prayers."

As President Schurman closed his eloquent and feeling address Governor Odell joined in the applause. All eyes then turned to the chief executive of the state, for it was expected that he would give a short address.

GOVERNOR ODELL SPEAKS.

At the solicitation of President Schurman he rose to speak. He stepped forward amid great cheering and waving of handkerchiefs.

His speech was punctuated by many bursts of applause.

He found common ground with his audience immediately in his reference to his collegiate training. He said that it had been asserted that all the trades and professions were already full to overcrowding. But it was his personal conviction that the good man is today as much in demand as ever before. Indeed, never before in the history of the world have there been such magnificent opportunities open for the properly prepared man.

And he felt that the man who today follows out his college course is the man who will find many tempting opportunities open for his filling. In his own case the training which he had received in his three years in college had served him well in the difficult position which he has to fill.

The educated man is the one upon whom the right management of the country's welfare depends. There have been many eminent men who have filled difficult positions without having taken a college course. But these men had been polished without their knowledge.

When he took his seat he was applauded for fully a minute.

The senior class led by President Kent then gave a rousing Cornell yell for "Odell." The members of the class of '97 likewise gave their class yell for the executive. The governor smilingly acknowledged these vociferous recognitions.

The benediction was pronounced by Professor Tyler and the undergraduate days of the class of 1902 were at an end.

The following degrees were conferred:

One purpose of THE ALUMNI NEWS is to keep Cornell men informed about one another. Every Cornell man, therefore, is invited to contribute to this column news concerning himself or any other student, and every contributor should remember that in sending news items he is conferring a favor upon other Cornellians.

This year's alumni registration at Commencement shows that there are nearly 300 graduates present. This is the largest reunion with but one exception that that the alumni have had, and it is gratifying to note their steady increase in attendance at the Commencement. Medical Alumni Association.

Another step in imitation of older colleges has been taken by the Medical College of this University. An alumni association has been formed. But we feel this step to be merely an evidence of the life within, rather than an imitation.

Those who come under the spell of the faith of Ezra Cornell, that great results will grow from small beginnings, are wont to tentatively make small beginnings themselves, and then look forward with confidence for the results. So with "the Medics." They founded a "Medical Club" with aims that sounded too big for them, and have watched for two years the growth manifesting itself in a students' room, students' library, students' meetings, and an esprit de corps which has done much to make behavior in clinics and examinations worthy of members of the profession.

Now comes the founding of the "Medical Alumni Association of Cornell University." About three months ago a committee of alumni, who had been asked by the executive committee of the undergraduate "Medical Club" to consider the matter, met at the home of Dr. Sarah Robinson Creighton, '99. They saw not only the value but the need of an organization which should perpetuate and develop the ideals of the University as embodied in the Medical College, and of the students, as embodied in the Medical club. Forthwith they appointed a date for a mass meeting of graduates; decided that, if possible, each graduate should receive a personal appeal as well as a printed notice of the meeting; and draw up a preliminary constitution.

The mass meeting, as planned, took place in the college building, Tuesday evening June 3, Dr. J. H. McLean, '01, acting as chairman. About forty alumni were present, including a large representation from the present graduating class, and a pervasive air of friendliness was convincing proof that even medical students like to get together again, and prophesied good times coming later when a duly appointed "Committee on Arrangements" plans for the meetings. The constitution was practically in shape and was adopted with just enough changes to prove that the meeting was a lively one. Its purposes, with a faith that would do honor to the founder of the University, to further the interests of the college and the larger interests of the University, to further the interests of the graduates, to promote good fellowship among the graduates, and between the graduates and undergraduates. Finally, it intends to supplement the work of the ALUMNI NEWS and of the undergraduates'

Medical Club that no graduate can be lost sight of, even though he travels far from his Alma Mater. There are to be two regular meetings during the year, to which the attention of all alumni is called, one, a business meeting, in commencement week, the other a social meeting during the fall term.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are as follows: President, John H. McLean, Jr., '01; Vice President, Edward R. Hildreth, '02; Secretary, Edward Hand, '00; Treasurer, Insee H. Berry, '99. The executive committee is composed of the officers, as above, with the addition of the "Committee on Arrangements"—Caroline L. Finley, '01, Henry J. Gundacker, '01, and Benjamin W. Zipser, '02.

Before long each graduate will receive a copy of the constitution, and those who join the organization will be kept informed of its meetings. It is hoped by those who, by virtue of being present, took the responsibility of the initiative, that all graduates will gladly and rapidly give their interest, their help, and their initiation fee of one dollar.

(S. S. B.)

All alumni of the medical college are urged to send their names and initiation fee of one dollar to the secretary, Dr. Hand, '00, Bellevue Hospital, East 26th. St., New York city, or to the treasurer, Dr. Berry, '99.

THE SOCIAL SIDE

Of Senior Week—Hardly up to the Standard.

The 1902 senior week festivities have passed into history leaving behind them only pleasant impressions, but hardly as much so as the senior weeks which preceded it.

THE MASQUE.

The Masque presented its annual Senior week play last Monday evening in the Lyceum. This year's production was much more elaborate than of previous years.

After the performance Coach Henry Gaines Hawn, who has devoted a large amount of time to the training of the actors, expressed great satisfaction over the result of the combined efforts of the students and the management.

He said the Masque members played their roles in an excellent manner and with evident ability. The production of "Les Romantiques" was much better than several productions he had seen in New York.

"Les Romantiques" was an exceedingly difficult play, and a high point of proficiency was reached in its presentation. W. W. Roney, '03, and Miss E. H. Hirsch, '03, played a difficult Romeo and Juliet scene that was warmly applauded.

The second play, "The Magistrate" was an original farce in three acts. H. R. McClain, who, as stage manager, had been director of the entire production, took the leading part.

The casts of the plays are as follows:

- "LES ROMANTIQUES." Percinet, a lover....W. W. Roney, '03 Straforal, a bravo.....Turner, '02 Bergamin, father to Percinet.....J. T. Driscoll, '03 Pasquin, father to Sylvette.....Fenner Sylvette, daughter of Pasquin (in love with Percinet).....Miss Hirsch, '02 Bravao, Musicians, Negro, etc.

- Cis Farrington, Mrs. Posket's son by her first marriage.....J. L. Mothershead, '03 Archilles Blond, proprietor of the Hotel des Princes.....I. S. Barth, '03 Isadore, a waiter.....J. H. McBeth, '02 Mr. Wormington.....Mr. Williams Inspector Messiter.....J. L. Davis, '04 Sergeant Lugg.....H. P. Atherton, '03 Constable Harris.....J. O. F. Clark, '03 Wyke.....T. S. Jones, '04 Agatha Posket, late Farrington, nee Verrinder.....Miss Myrtle M. Marsh, '02 Charlotte, her sister.....Miss J. C. Wilson, '02 Beatie Tomlinson.....Miss L. G. This year's Senior Ball was held in the Armory on the evening of June 17, and was successful. Alberger was the caterer, and the Rothschilds outdid themselves as decorators. THE CONCERT.

On Wednesday night the glee and mandolin clubs gave what proved to be the best concert of the year and and one of the most enjoyable events of the week. Musical club concerts must of necessity have a good deal of sameness to them, which grows tiresome when one has heard several of them. If it were in any way possible to avoid this impression, the University clubs have done so this year; and even to those who have listened to their singing and playing regularly for some time past the senior week concert was highly interesting. The Cornell clubs have a good reputation throughout the country where they have been heard; they certainly work hard to maintain it. Our clubs put upon their programs a greater number of new and meritorious selections than do most of their competitors; to master this new music and attain a high degree of excellence requires hard and thorough preparation. The work shows, however, in such performances as the senior week concert. The glee club especially deserves commendation. Its part of the program included seven numbers, five of which were entirely new. Of these new ones the most artistic was the "Sword of Ferrara" by Bullard. This required intelligent leading and skillful rendering, both of which it received. For the first time this year the glee club presented a medley; and the hearty applause which greeted it evidenced its popularity. It gave the club every opportunity from solo work in "Goo Goo Eyes" to a full ringing chorus in the "Lost Chord." The club has been more than fortunate this year in its soloists. J. C. Culver, '02, and C. E. Mott, '03, have both had numbers at every concert and both have done admirable work, their solos being among the most popular portions of the program. Mr. Culver scored a hit on Wednesday with the "Cellarer's Toast" from Maid Marian, after which he responded to two encores. Mr. Mott achieved success with "Bonnie Sweet Bessie, The Maid o' Dundee." His encores were "Happy Days Gone By," and "Mighty Lak a Rose," by Nevin.

The mandolin club also was better than usual. Its most popular selections were "Mazanillo," "In a Cozy Corner," and the "Warblers."

FRATERNITY EVENTS.

Several of the fraternities gave their annual dances during Senior week. The first of these was that given by Zeta Psi. Dancing began at 11 o'clock, as soon as the parties had left the Masque, and continued until nearly sunrise. The dance was very pretty, and many of the friends of the fraternity enjoyed the hospitality of the excellent hosts.

The Chi Psi fraternity gave its annual dance last Wednesday evening at the lodge. About 350 guests and members of the fraternity were

SOME EVIDENCES OF GROWTH.

At the close of the academic year it is perhaps fitting to call attention briefly to some of the evidences of the continued growth and prosperity of the University.

From the opening of the summer session in July, 1901, to Commencement day last week, there were between 3,300 and 3,400 students in attendance at Cornell University. On January 1, 1902, there were exactly 334 more students registered than on January 1, 1901. As President Schurman has more than once said with pardonable pride, this is more than the combined increase at Harvard, Yale and Princeton. We learn from Registrar Hoy that every indication points to a large attendance next year.

We are in a period of gratifying building operations. Two new buildings are nearing completion. One of these is Stimson Hall, the building in which most of the medical work done in Ithaca will be carried on. As is well known, the full four-year course of the Cornell University Medical College is given in New York, but the first half of it is also given at Ithaca where it may be taken by men students, and where alone it can be taken by women students. The other new building is the addition to Sibley College. The addition connects the two older Sibley College buildings and will do much to relieve the congestion now suffered in the engineering department. Ground has just been broken for a geodetic observatory, the gift of General Alfred C. Barnes. The site which has been chosen for the observatory is the knoll south of the Veterinary College building and east of the houses of Professors Thurston and Fuertes on East Avenue. This building has been greatly needed for some time and will make possible the razing of the old wooden observatory which has so long been almost a disgrace to our beautiful Campus.

The three buildings already mentioned will be ready for occupancy when the regular session of the University opens in the fall. Perhaps, however, the greatest interest is centered in the building which has not yet even been commenced. This is the Hall of Physics made possible by the generosity of Mr. John D. Rockefeller. Mr. Rockefeller's gift to the University and the use to be made of it are well known to all Cornellians. The high standing of the architects employed by the University to make the plans for the building and superintend its construction is a sure guarantee of its excellence when completed.

Almost the only project begun last year which has not yet been brought to a successful issue is the movement for the new athletic field on the Campus. The committee in charge of the movement reported last week that about half the amount necessary for the field had been raised. We feel confident that the large body of our alumni who are interested in the physical well-being as well as the athletic successes of our undergraduates will not let this matter drop until the entire fund necessary has been raised. With this exception the recent efforts of our President, Board of Trustees, alumni and students for the upbuilding of the University have met with signal success. The outlook is surely one of much encouragement to all lovers of the University.

Class Reunions.

The representatives of the class of '72 met for an informal dinner last Wednesday. A pleasant evening was spent in renewing old acquaintances and in reviewing the memories of bygone days.

The class met for a second time in the savings bank building, where, accompanied by their wives, about sixty-five Cornellians met for a dinner. During the course of the evening, a committee awarded the loving cup to the class "baby". Professor Fetter and several others responded to toasts, and the evening was passed in renewing the memories of college days.

The class of '92 held a business meeting on Wednesday in Barnes Hall. At this meeting, at which about fifty of the class were present, each one told of his or her experience for the past ten years, statistics were gathered, telling who had married and the number of children of each. The list of the "unaccounted for" members was read, and much information in regard to them was gleaned from those present.

The publication of a class roster, telling of the present address and life of all living members of the class was authorized, and a class tax of $1.00 was levied. A committee

Fifteen '99 men came back for the triennial re-union of the class. Several impromptu gatherings were held down town and on the Campus, including a joint meeting with '92, '97, at Zinck's Wednesday night after the concert, which was royal fun.

The matter of ninety-nine's quinquennial re-union was taken up enthusiastically.

Herbert B. Lee, Frank Eurich, Charley Whinery, A. W. King, E. A. Barnes, E. C. Zeller, and Ned Stevens were appointed a committee to boom the next re-union and to bring back every last '99 man.

ALUMNI--'VARSITY.

Game of Baseball Ends in a Tie
-2 and 2.

The Cornell Varsity and an alumni team played the annual game last Tuesday at Percy Field. The alumni surprised their younger opponents by their speedy, consistent playing and the game at the end of seven innings resulted in a tie score, 2-2. Captain Taylor, of the alumni team, was at the head of a strong aggregation. He and "Tar" Young, stolen bases, Brown 2; Whinery 2; Chase and Johnson; left on bases, Varsity, 5; Alumni, 5; time of game, 1:30; umpire, Bernie McCormick.

Class Day Exercises.

The class-day exercises of the Class of 1902 were held June 27 in the Armory and on the Campus green. The weather was most propitious for the exercises of the out-going class. There was hardly a cloud in the sky and the cool wind which blew across the Campus tempered the weather to a grateful degree.

had been solving the theoretical problems of college life. The time for meeting the cold and practical world was now at hand. Rugged experiences are sure to come; but the rough usages of this life may be softened by the keeping alive of spiritual ideals.

The class then adjourned to the library where they grouped themselves for the class photograph, taken by Mr. Howes.

Following this the class ivy was planted at the west end of Boardman Hall. M. A. Ford, ivy orator and winner of this year's Woodford, told the significance of this ceremony.

After the ivy oration was delivered the class assembled informally in the grove in front of Lincoln hall. L. G. Price, the "Horace Greeley" of his class, as well as its historian, recalled former deeds and misdeeds of his classmates. George Payne Winters predicted brilliant futures for his class. His characteristic satire was not missing.

The day's exercises were closed by the presentation of the class pipe by F. X. McCollum and its acceptance by Floyd Leslie Carlisle for the class of 1903.

The members of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity entertained a large number of their friends at a very enjoyable dance last Wednesday evening. The pretty fraternity house was tastily decorated, and the dance was one of the pleasantest of the week.

orated, the verandas at either end of the house being connected by a temporary flooring which served as a promenade. The patronesses were Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Bostwick, Mrs. Leupp, Mrs. Hooker, Mrs. Tuttle, Mrs. Haskin.

The Kappa Alpha Society gave its annual boat ride on Friday as the closing event of senior week. About two hundred guests enjoyed the trip to Sheldrake, where supper was served at the Cayuga Lake House. The boat left on the return trip at ten o'clock. There was a full moon in the sky, but the night was almost too cool for enjoyment. The Ithaca band furnished music.

Baccalaureate Sermon.

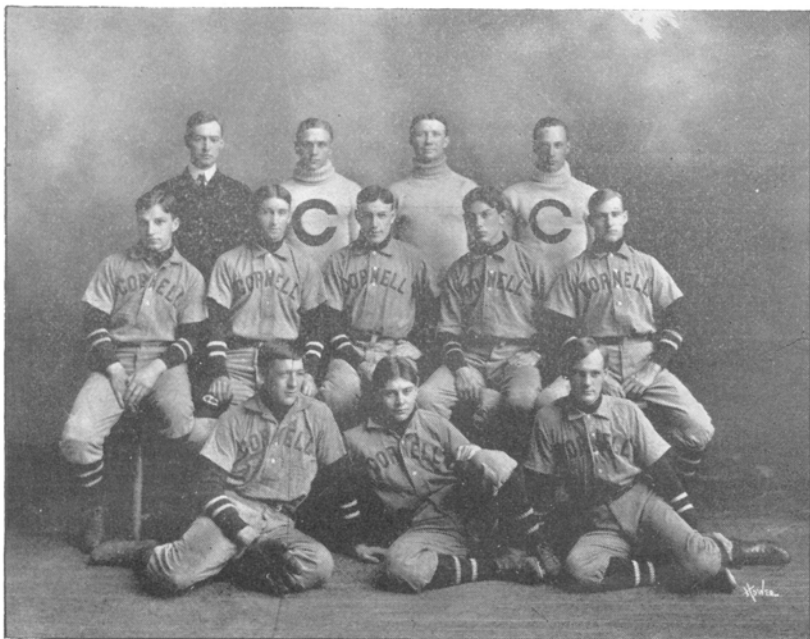

The official ceremonies of commencement week were initiated Sunday, June 15, with the baccalaureate sermon in Sage Chapel. The auditorium was completely filled with faculty members, seniors, and their friends. The Rev. Henry VanDyke, D. D., of Princeton University, delivered the sermon.

Dr. VanDyke chose as his text the latter part of 1 Peter II-21,—"Because Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example, that ye should follow His steps." The theme of the discourse was "Christ the type of noble influence."

The theme was developed under three heads: First, the influence of Christ was due to the fact that He had a standard of conduct and character. "To this standard He bowed down and lived up."

The influence of Christ flows also from his unselfish devotion to duty. He was a hard and glad worker. Industry is contagious, commanding.

Lastly, the influence of Christ lies in its deepest power in self-unconsciousness. Great men are not made by a desire to be great, but by the kind of work they do.

THE 'VARSITY BASE BALL TEAM.

whose terrific speed and swift curves are well known, made a battery that held the Varsity down to five hits.

"Bill" Miller played center field with his customary skill, and Johnson played his old batting game, making a home run by one of the cleverest hits seen at Percy Field for many a year. Ex-Captain Robertson played his place at first as he used to but Blair, Best and Newton showed that their lack of practice in recent years had slightly affected their playing.

For the Varsity Chase pitched his usual strong game, and allowed the "grads" to score but five safe hits. Lewis's lame ankle weakened his playing somewhat, but did not prevent his playing an errorless game.

At 9 o'clock the seniors took their place in the line which was formed in front of Sage college. By 9:30 o'clock 275 members of the graduating class were in line, and the column then took up its march for the Armory where the first part of the exercises were held.

When the seniors entered the hall the Armory was already well filled with spectators. The interior was a bower of beauty. The decorations for the senior ball were finished and were a delight to the eye with their harmonious profusion of colors.

On the stage at the east end of the hall were seated the Rev. Charles Mellen Tyler, R. S. Kent, the president of the senior class, G. A. Oldham, Viola G. Hast, Margaret W. Whiteford and W. C. Geer.

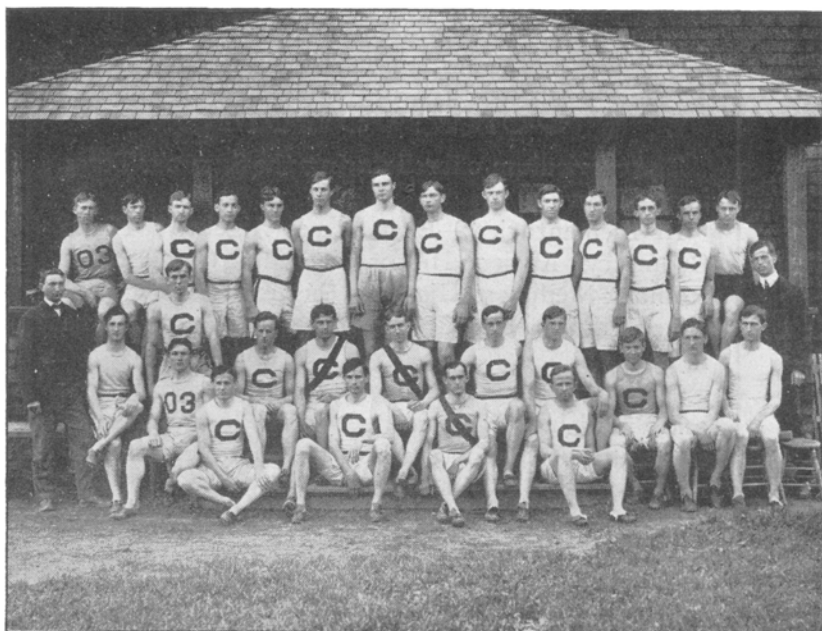

The exercises were opened by a prayer from Professor Tyler. This was followed by a general singing of Alma Mater led by the glee club.

George Ashton Oldham then delivered the class oration. In a polished and dignified speech he pleaded for the bettering of the Cornell spirit—not that spirit which leads to the painting of class numerals on side-walks, but the spirit that makes for the uplifting of college morality and the raising of the standard of scholarship.

The oration was on a high plane. In this speech as in all others of the morning, the dominant note was one of hope and encouragement with just a suggestion of sadness that college days were over and the time of parting had come.

Miss Hast recited a graceful class poem and Miss Whiteford appeared at her best in a witty and sparkling essay. William Chauncey Geer delivered with impressive dignity the memorial oration.

The president's address by Ralph Sherlock Kent closed the exercises at the Armory. It was an inspiring effort, full of strength, good cheer, and encouragement. For four years they

A Review of the Year in Cornell Journalism.

The undergraduate publications of the University have enjoyed a successful and satisfactorily prosperous season during the year which is now drawing to a close. A few important changes or marked tendencies are to be observed, however. Perhaps the most noticeable point is the decrease in the amount of attention given to the purely literary side of journalistic work. Both of the annuals, the Cornellian and the Class Book, have this year discarded their customary literary departments, and the omission does not seem to have occasioned any regret among the students. This action, moreover, has not helped the literary magazines of the University in the slightest. The editors there are having continually increasing difficulty in filling their pages. The story-writing and essay writing habits of the old-fashioned college student are dying out.

Another trend which has been marked at Cornell of late years has been the concentration of the editorial work in the hands of fewer and fewer students. Those who devote themselves to journalism as their chief interest in undergraduate affairs, and bring ability and energy to the work, are securing the greater part of the good positions. It is now no rare thing for a student to hold two or three important editorial places. One of the papers next year will have on its staff representatives of all the other boards.

Of the individual publications, the Era must, in accordance with custom be mentioned first, not because of its preeminent position, for that it has long since lost; but because it is still looked up to as the oldest of Cornell's papers. The Era of the present day, is a very different affair from that known to the alumni. It is now ending its second year as a monthly literary magazine, having taken the place of the former Cornell Magazine. Considering the little attention and support given literary activities, the editors have succeeded in producing a fairly good number each month. Enough variety of content has always been obtained to make the issues interesting. Editorially, the affairs of the University world have received but scant attention. The introduction of articles by alumni has proved very successful, and the policy will be continued. The alumni who have contributed during the year are Theodore Stanton, '76, Ruth Putnam, '78, John Ford, '90, Everett W. Olmsted, '91, Francis W. H. Clay, '93, N. Gilbert Seymour, '97, Willard E. Hotchkiss, '97, Mrs. Edna McNairy Colson, '98, Frank E. Gannett, '98, Lewis E. P. Shanks, '99, Louise M. Puig, '01, Frederick Will, Jr., '01, Thomas A. Caine, '01, and James F. Dorrance, ex-'03. The editor of the Era for the year has been Richardson Webster, '02, of Brooklyn. The manager during the early part of the year was Irving I. Goldsmith, '03, of Saratoga Springs, who was succeeded by John M. Keeler, Jr., '03, of Baltimore, Maryland. For the coming year the editor will be Arthur J. Tietje, '03, of Dayton, Ohio, and the present manager will continue in office.

The Sun, this year has continued in its position of the most widely read and most influential of the several publications. This prestige, however, falls to it naturally as the daily paper, now the most powerful portion of the journalism of the land. The plans made at the end of the last college year for the enlargement of the board, with a partial return to the elective system, have been given up; and the system in vogue for several years has been completely readopted. This requires a board of two sophomores, three juniors, and four seniors, all chosen by competition. This method of selecting the editors is generally conceded to be the best, but it has its drawbacks. The reckless desire to fill space, and the absence of any penalty for mistakes, has encouraged a careless style of work, devoid apparently of all responsibility. Errors in typography, in fact, and in editorial judgment have long characterized the Sun. It is but fair to this year's board, however, to state, that in this respect conditions have been much better than in some former years. Editorially the board has been active, though hardly so aggressive and fearless as its immediate predecessor. The editor for the year has been L. Guernsey Price, '02, of Hudson, and the manager, Ralph Ware, '02, of Chicago. Next year these positions will be filled by Arthur M. Wright, '03, of Lyndonville, and Edwin B. Nell, '03, of Rochester.

The Sibley Journal, on account of its scientific character, is necessarily withdrawn from active connection with undergraduate affairs to a large extent. It has maintained a high standard technically through the year, the traditions and rules of former years being adhered to carefully. In only one direction has a new policy been attempted; the alumni personals department has been much enlarged. Particular attention is given to the engineering accomplishments of former Cornellians. The Journal this year has received much attention from outside, perhaps more than ever before. Reprints from it have appeared in a number of American engineering papers, and also in England and France. The editor is Sidney G. Koon, '02, of Auburn, and the manager Lawrence S. Haskin, '02, of Waterford, Conn. Their successors will be Rudolph E. Mueden, '03, of Washington, D. C., and Horace E. Sibson, '04, of Philadelphia.

The Widow, the youngest and lightest of the student publications, has been considered by many this year to have wandered from its place as the humorous paper of the University. Certainly it has not been so irresistibly amusing as it is possible for a college paper of its sort to be, or as it has been in the past. From the artistic standpoint, however, the publication has been very strong, and much of its text has been bright. Curiously enough, it has been the Widow that has led the way in speaking out frankly and firmly whenever any question of student affairs needed such treatment. The editorial page of the Widow has been generally entirely serious and forceful, and has agreed well with the final decisions of undergraduate opinion. A minor, though annoying defect, has been poor proof-reading. The editor is R. Harold Shreve, '02, of Cooperstown, who will be succeeded by Robert Ryon, '03, of Pottsville, Pa. The manager, Harry F. Sommer, '03, of New York city, will continue in office.

Of the annuals, the 1903 Cornellian was first to appear. It proves a worthy addition to the series. As

GAMEY DRESSERS

is customary, the book is a complete catalogue of the student activities. All the teams and organizations are represented, the usual individual records of the members of the faculty and upperclassmen are given, and the collection of photographs of the Campus and vicinity is large. In addition, many views of the important foot ball games are included, and much space is devoted to the Medical College. Several of the department title pages, done in colors, have attracted much favorable attention. The book appears to be practically free from errors of text, a fact which should not be worthy of special attention. Unfortunately, however, the example of some recent annuals makes this negative virtue an exceptional merit. The editor of the book is Porter R. Lee, '03, of Buffalo, and the manager Irving I. Goldsmith, '03, of Saratoga Springs. Next year their places will be taken by Fred B. Humphrey, '04, of Elmira, and Graham C. Patterson, '04, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

The 1902 Class Book was late in arriving on the Campus, but met with a favorable reception, and seems to compare well in every way with its predecessors. The engravings and press work in some instances are not of the best, but the standard set in this regard has never been very high. Editorially the work on the book seems to be most careful. The write-ups are interesting, and in general marked by an absence of severe "roasts". The scope of the general pages is quite comprehensive, while the collection of general views is large and excellent. The editor is R. Allen Bole, '02, of Cleveland, Ohio, and the manager, Sidney G. Koon, '02, of Auburn.

MEETING OF TRUSTEES.

Much Important Business Was Transacted.

The Board of Trustees of Cornell University held their annual spring meeting in Ithaca on Wednesday, June 18, the following out of town trustees being present: Judge G. B. Turner, of Auburn, Mr. F. S. Washburn, of Washville, H. M. Sage, of Mendans, C. S. Francis, of Troy, W. C. Kerr, Miss Ruth Putnam, and H. W. Sackett, of New York, L. O. Howard, of Washington, F. H. Hiscock, of Syracuse, and C. S. Shepard, of New Haven.

The trustees chose as the architects of the Rockefeller Hall of Physics, Messrs. Carrere and Hastings, of New York city. The building will be located just south of the dairy building on East avenue and will complete the large stone quadrangle.

Several new members were appointed to the Faculty. Professor J. V. VanPelt was chosen professor of architecture, and director of the College of Architecture. H. A. Sill is to be an assistant professor of Ancient history, and R. C. H. Catterall will act as assistant professor of modern European history, Professor Burr being left free to devote his attention to medieval history. Dr. H. Ries has been chosen an assistant professor of geology.

Professor R. C. H. Catterall, who is to be an assistant professor of modern European history is, it is understood, to assume charge of the department just left by Professor H. Morse Stephens. Professor Catterall, who comes from the University of Chicago, was appointed upon the stipulation that he would spend next year abroad, and he will accordingly enter upon his new duties in 1903. Probably no courses will be given in this department in the meantime. Next year the elementary course in English history will be given by Mr. Sill.

Alumni Association.

The Alumni Association held its annual meeting last Wednesday. Several matters of great importance were discussed, and many interesting reports were submitted. Owing to the unavoidable absence of President Horace White, '87, the vice-president, Whitney Newton, '79, presided, representatives from every class from '71 to '01 being present.

Many important committee reports were submitted. The committee on election of alumni trustees reported the election of George B. Turner, '73, of Auburn, and Charles E. Treman, '89, of Ithaca. Treasurer George S. Tarbell, '91, submitted an itemized account of the receipts and disbursements of the past year. His report showed a balance of $310, principally arising from the payment of life membership dues. The committee on incorporation recommended the election of directors who should have power to incorporate the association.

The following members together with the president and secretary were elected directors: G. W. Harris, '73; Mynderse VanCleef, '74; Jared T. Newman, '75; Ernest W. Huffcut, '84; and C. D. Bostwick, '92. These directors were instructed to obtain articles of incorporation under the laws of New York.

The athletic field committee presented a most encouraging report, in which it was announced that nearly $35,000 had been raised which would be of immediate avail upon the subscription of $40,000. The alumni trustee, George B. Turner, in his report revised the work of the past year, telling of the growth of the college and its promising prospect. After submitting his report, he made a forcible plea for the establishment of an alumni hall and for the new athletic field. After electing the following officers the meeting adjourned:

President, C. F. Wheelock, '73.

Vice-presidents, R. G. H. Speed, '71; F. O. Crim, '77; A. K. Hiscock, '82; H. M. Lovell, '87; L. D. Baldwin, '92; Mabel A. Clark, '97.

Corresponding secretary, George L. Burr, '81.

Recording secretary, George W. Harris, '73.

Treasurer, George S. Tarbell, '91. Executive Committee, E. L. Nichols, '75; Frank Irvine, '80.

ber of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity and of Sphinx Head.

The baseball team recently elected G. J. Costello, '03, captain of next year's nine. He has played on the team for three years, and in his capacity of third baseman, has proven himself one of the team's most reliable players. Coach Jennings, in speaking of his work says, "Costello has improved remarkably, and is one of the fastest players on the team." In addition to his work on the diamond, Costello has played on his class football teams, and has served on several class committees. He is a member of Sphinx Head.

Miss Washburn Resigns.

On May 23, it was learned that Miss Margaret F. Washburn, warden of Sage College had resigned her position. Her resignation was due to the fact that she was offered the position of dean of the woman's department of the University of Cincinnati, which she will accept.

Miss Washburn is a graduate of Vassar. There she received the degree of A. B. in 1891, and then entered Columbia University as a graduate student in Psychology. A year later she came to Cornell. In 1892 she was made fellow in psychology and the following June received the degree of Ph. D.

Miss Washburn then was appointed professor at Well's College, Aurora, N. Y., where her work was very successful. In 1900, when Miss Brownell resigned as warden of Sage College, Miss Washburn was chosen to fill the vacant position.

As warden, Miss Washburn has met with remarkable success. She has not only been very well liked by the women in the University, but has continued her psychological studies and recently was elected to Sigma Xi.

In regard to leaving Ithaca, Miss Washburn says that she will go this June at the close of the college year, but will not assume her duties at Cincinnati until this fall. Besides holding the position as dean of the woman's department, she will occupy the chair of psychology, a position which has never before been held by a woman in the University of Cincinnati.
